Other Interesting Facts:

We all know that penguins are rare birds in the sense that they have wings but do not fly. They are excellent swimmers and can travel long distances, propelling themselves with their flipper-like wings and using their webbed feet as rudders. In fact, they spend 80% of their lives at sea! This penguin defies all odds and propels himself in the air with helium. Watch closely as he waddles toward you—he may toboggan on his stomach if he gets to an icy or snowy area.
